A place to play brings life into the eyes of the children who pass through its doors...

Once upon a time ...

At the place to Play, you can find therapy, prevention, education and recreation. Playtheraphy permits children to express obsessions, attempt to rid themselves of traumas, reveal physical or psychological suffering. Playing means expressing themselves as children and it bears witness to their development.

udotheraphy, or playtheraphy, a breakthrough. This simple concept, adopted by Western societies some time ago, has never been totally applied in the context of humanitarian organizations.

"Tell me how he plays and I'll tell you how he feels".

Playtheraphy is an ideal means of helping traumatized children to reconstruct their personalities and achieve harmony. Playing is essential in the process of growing up and communicating with one's environment. The place to Play offers kids a new glimpse of life, something different from the slums, the streets, jails and the foundations.

At the Place to Play, it is simply possible to play without being interrupted, without thinking about productivity and in an environment oriented towards socialization and sharing.

« They play and play again, to make up for the lost time. They play to play, to learn, to understand. ». Aurore Prudent-Roiland, Founder
